transactions reveal anything criminal on which to make a specific charge, the investigation of that charge will necessarily go into all the schemes and methods of the firm.

A good many people fancy that Ives and Stayner have not rendered themselves liable discrivise than civility, the reason given for this opinion being that they have employed eminent counsel and pretty constantly consulted with them. It is argued that, however flagrant their acts have been, they have on this account been kept within the law.

The assumption is wrong. Although they retained able counsel they did not always consult them. In at least one important matter they knew that no lawyer worth employing would advise or allow them to pursue the course they did. As a matter of fact they deserved their most conspicuous counsel to an extent that practically vitiated any logal efforts that might be made to help them.

The especial case spoken of was the use of $1.250,000 Dayton and Chicago first mortgage bonds. These bonds had been authorized and were ready for issue when the road was sold to lyes & Co., who consolidated it with or made it a part of the Dayton. Fort Wayne, and Chicago road. As the road was to be covered by the general mortgage upon the last named consolidated property, the directors of the Dayton and Chicago road formally rescinded their action authorizing the $1.250,000 bond issue, and directed that the mortgage be satisfied and the bonds cancelled. How far these instructions were carried out could not be learned yesterday, but it is certain that the bonds have not been cancelled, and that they have been used by Ives & Co. as collatoral. They are now pretty well distributed with Ives & Co.'s other securities through Wall street. This is one of the transactions that is pininly replete with liftgation.

securities through Wall street. This is one of the transactions that is plainly replete with lifigation.

The mode in which Ives and Stayner lifted securities and cash from the treasuries of the companies they controlled has not yet appeared, and it will never be made public if those who have been associated with them can help it. Of course some form of authority was gone through with, as in the case of the issue of the C., H, and D, preferred stock, which Ives said recently was issued by order of the Board. The fact that the Board so ordered seems only to bave increased the responsibility for the act. Ives, with his genius for bookkeeping and forms, will probably show the assignee how all of the preferred stock was paid for by Ives & Co. fo Ives & Co., fiscal agents of the company; but despite all the jugglery of checks and accounts, the fact remains that no money ever went into the C., H, and D. treasury for the stock, and that the stock was used by Ives & Co. in the furtherance of their private schemes.

One view put forth in Ives's behalf was that he was buying all the roads he guited and also the Baitimore and Ohlo in the interests of the C., H, and D., and that if all had gone well the C., H, and D. would be a great system. Upon this point one of the most astute and successful railroad men Wall street knows of delivered himself as follows yesterday:

"If every railroad corporation has the right to speculate in the securities of other roads, and the assets and credit of each successive purchase can be used to extend the speculation, we might as well throw all of our securities over at once. The observance of forms or elaborate methods of bookkeeping or any other technicality that may be raised ought not to stand as a defence against the complaint of the stockholder whose property has been depreciated or ruined.

It remains to be seen whether the money lenders who have the Ives & Co. loans will nurse them along as desired by the embryonic syndicate. Yesterday the members of this syndicate persuaded August Belmont & Co. to withdraw the securities they had offered for sale against a sterling loan of £90,000, or $450,000. All of the secured creditors have agreed to wait awhile to see what the people who have intervened in Ives & Co.'s affairs can do.

agreed to wait awhile to see what the people who have intervened in Ives & Co.'s affairs can do.

A meeting of the creditors of the firm was held in the C. H. and D. office, in the Astor building, yesterday afternoon. Assignee W. N. Cromwell said that creditors representing about three-fourths of the liabilities were present or represented. He presented a rough statement of the liabilities and assets. The liabilities were put at about $15,000,000. The assets, except as to the collateral held for the secured debt, could not be estimated. Mr. Cromwell reported the efforts which are being made and which have been described above, and said that while the railroad company had not definitely acted, it sanctioned the efforts that were being made. The conference was said to be harmonious, and it formally expressed its approval of the appointment of Mr. Cromwell as assignee, and also of the steps he said had been taken toward closing up matters. There were no developments tending to change materially the schedules of Ives & Co.'s liabilities as published in THE SUN. Assignee Cromwell makes the total $15,000,000, as against $17,000,000 given in THE SUN. Assignee Cromwell makes the total $15,000,000, as against $17,000,000 given in THE SUN. but it was noted in connection with THE SUN'S schedules no allowance was made for possible offsets or credits against the liabilities to railroad corporations. When it comes down to the actual losses or not liabilities or the firm of Ives & Co., the figures that Ives gave so grandly when he announced his assignment the secured liabilities will practically liquidate themselves. That would knock about $5,000,000 fcm the total at one stroke. If the $3,000,000 of C. H. & D. preserved stock can be recovered into the treasury of the company, as nearly every one believes it can, that annount can be deducted from the chilgations of the firm to corporations. These lwo operations would reduce the total liabilities would be reduced the $5,000,000 all due to corporations in these estimates the sec

The developments of the failure provoked no little criticism of the action of people who have made loans to Ives. It goes without saying that no sympathy was expressed for any of them. The President of one important institution said that in his opinion the people who had made loans to Ives & Co, were not without had made loans to Ives & Co, were not without the actions of the disaster he has caused. He arrused:

He argued:

ROCHESTER, Aug. 12.-To-day was the last day of the Grand Circuit trotting in this city. The sport was not exciting, and expressions such as "fraud" and "hippodrome" were heard frequently. Things went along avenimingly until the Athletics went in for their half of the sixth inning. The umpire. Mr. Sullivan had caused much dissatisfaction at several points, but they were smoothed over. Weyhing was first to the bar in the sixth inning, and when he hit a liner to right field llogan fumbled it, and Weyhing ran around to third. The ompire ordered him back to second, and Cap. Stovey ordered him to stay where ho was. Then the fun began. Weyhing sat down on third base and refuses to move, and the other seventeen players not around the umpire and howeid in his ear. Then the unpire got anarry and threatened to fine every mother's son of them.

Finally Sollivan rushed over to the press box and demanded a watch. Several were offered to him, but no effort was made to detach them from their chains. At this Manager Mason came on the field and demanded his rights. After some hot words between Nanagers Mason and Caylor. Mason was ordered of the field by the ompire. At first he did not seem to care to go, but they ordered him to sit down, asying at the same time that he could take care of himself. By this lime the umpire and players had again reached the home plate, and the wards and the press box for the watch, and at the same time that the rules? What's the rules?

FRIDAY, Aug. 12. The stock market, or rather the greater part of it, remained nearly stationary to-day. The traders continued to do the greater part of the business; at least, they were the ones who were conspicuous for their dealings. The developments were generally in favor of better prices, but no one appeared ready to take advantage of the good news that came to hand. The most important circumstance in favor of the market was the receipt of $850,000 specie from abroad. It is understood that about $4,000,000 more is under way. A considerable shipment was engaged to-day in London by a leading house here. The exchange market made a further decline, and in the face of these two factors and the fact that the Treasury is open for the disbursement of nearly $50,000,000, the bears endeavored to influence the list by bidding up money late in the day.

opening as it was possible that the formal suspension of Ives & Co. might inspire some selling of actual stock. There were no orders of that character, however, and the street soon became convinced that the disappearance of Ives & Co. was the fortunate circumstance that they at first considered it. The only stocks in which there was anything doing to warrant in which there was anything doing to warrant mention were St. Paul. New England, and Reading. Outside of these the trading scenned to be largely nominal. The aggressive force in the market was the short interest, which is gradually assuming such proportions that it would not be surprising if it resulted in turning the market.

There was very little doing in the Unlisted Department. Cotten Oil Trusts sold at 34 to 34%. Western National Bank at 95 to 94, and Sutro Tunnel at 41 cents # share. The market closed firm.

Government bonds quiet and lower. The 4 is closed is and the 4s & Feent, lower bit. Italiway bonds dull but steady at practically unchanged quotations.

Money on call 5@6 7 cent. Sterling exchange heavy. Posted asking rates were lowered it cent. # pound, to $4.82 for long bills and $4.84 is for demand.

the total to date $33,003,300.

There is something like an incident panic among the small stockholders of the Western National Bank, and their offerings of little lets of stock have depressed the price to about 95. The bank has not been so successful as its sangulus projectors supposed it would be. Its capital is $3,500,000, its individual deposits about $1,250,000, and its received nat profits of capital is $3.500,000, its individual deposits about $1.250,000, and its reported net profits of its first three months business about $15.000. This does not promise very brilliant results for the rest of the year, and if the loan to the Fidelity National Bank of Cincinnati should turn out a loss, the stockholders may possibly be assessed to make up a deficiency in the capital.

Troubaddeur to be Sent to a Stock Farm, start in the Champion Stakes to morrow. "Troubadour is to be retired next week," said Capt. Brown this afternoon. "He will be shipped to my stock farm in kentucky and put in the sind. There is no truth in the story that I am negotiating for his saie to the livyers or Lucky Baidwin. I have received several offers for him, but refused them all. Bind he not broken down he would have won the Freeheld Stakes. He retires with a grand record. The report that Jockey Shapper Garrison has been accured by the Haggin istable is not correct. Carrison will remain with me next year, and I believe as long as I want him.
